
Tell everyone in your group your name, where you’re from, and what you like to do outside of school.

Describe the place where you lived while growing up. Is it similar to where you live now? What did you and your friends like to play?

How do you define success? Who are individuals you think are successful? What skills do they have to make them this way?

Comic relief: Go around and make the funniest face you can. It’s okay to be silly.

What’s your relationship to sports? Like them? Hate them? Why?

What’s your relationship with school? Love it? Hate it? Why? Any books you really like? Which ones?

Question: Does playing a sport or being involved in extracurricular activities make you a better student and human being? Why?

Free question: Make one up for your group. Ask a question that will interest everyone in your group.

What Skills4Life skill did you write about? Which of these skills are most important to you?

Is there a relationship between being athletic, being academic, and doing more for the world we live in?

Last one: Decide on one thing you want to share with everyone about your group’s conversation. Decide who will say it and what they will say.